

Sponsorship Opportunities

You are invited to become an active supporter of the XI International Vaccinium Symposium.

This international symposium brings together all communities of Vaccinium production from research, teaching, and extension, to producers and marketers involved in the industry. Held every four years, and hosted by the renowned ISHS and UF, it captures the Vaccinium audience worldwide.

Why Join as a Sponsor

Aligning your organization with the symposium provides you with the opportunity to strengthen industry relationships, and interact with key individuals working with vaccinium species throughout the world. Take advantage of this occasion to promote your organization and provide a presence before attendees from university, governmental, private, and non-profit organizations.

All sponsors will be included on the website and in promotional emails distributed to the ISHS membership listing and interested individuals working with vaccinium species. The sooner you sign up as a sponsor, the more coverage you will receive.
